Dan Swartwood Joins Satellite Logistics Group Management Team

HOUSTON (May 23, 2008) - Third-party beverage logistics leader Satellite Logistics Group of companies (SLG) announced the addition of Dan Swartwood to its management team as director of process and supply chain design.

In his new role, Swartwood will be responsible for ensuring effective, integrated and timely execution of initiatives through analysis, design and re-engineering of supply chain processes, procurement strategy and organizational structure, which will enable Satellite Logistics Group to meet and exceed client and company strategic objectives.

"Dan's experience as a supply chain consultant, SCOR instructor as well as his Six Sigma and Lean credentials will contribute greatly to our objective of providing unparalleled supply chain optimization for the beverage industry," said Kevin Brady, owner and president of Houston-based SLG.

Swartwood is a certified SCOR Master Instructor, ASQ Certified Quality Engineer and is a member of the Supply Chain Council Board of Directors. During his 20-year career with 3M, Swartwood improved department productivity and operating income while reducing unit cost, saving the company millions of dollars. Swartwood received his Bachelor of Science in physics and has published material relating to SCOR, Six Sigma, inventory and operational costs in multiple supply chain publications.
